The straightforward business-like proceeding of a British court of justice was well illustrated in the case of the Crown against Lamson, the young American physician, charged with murder, the trial of which closed in London on Tuesday. From the peculiar circumstances attending it, it was one which attracted considerable attention, not alone in England, but in this country, and in some of the countries in Europe, as well. Yet, notwithstanding the various scientific questions involved, the amount of expert testimony to be considered, and ALL OF THE NOVELTIES IN ELEGANT GOODS the full presentation of all the points involved in the case by counsel on both sides, the trial consumed less than a week's time, and the telegraph says that at no time were there more than a hundred spectators present, while the jury brought in its verdict of guilty after an absence from the court room of only about thirty minutes. This prompt action was suitably supplemented by the presiding judge, who has since sentenced the prisoner to be hung on the 4th of April,-a little less than three weeks from the date of his sentence At first sight these facts might be regarded as in dicating unseemly haste, and something in the nature of a private inquiry. No complaint, however, has been made on either of these points by counsel for the defence, and there is no reason to believe that the result would have been different had the trial of the case consumed three months time and been conducted before the eyes of all The example furnished by this case is one worthy of emulation in this country. No private injury has been sustained by the manner in which the trial was conducted, and the rights and welfare of the public have been carefully and effectually preserved throughout. As the Times foreibly expresses it, the conviction of Dr. Lamson will doubtless contribute to the safety of many lives which his acquittal would have placed in peril. Not this alone, but the prisoner has not been allowed to attitudinize before an admiring crowd during the trial, and in this regard a substantial public advantage has also been gained. It is safe to say, furthermore, that when the day for carrying out his sentence arrives the prisoner will be hung without an opportunity to appear as a hero before the throng of such debased creatures as usually attend a public execution. In these respects, likewise, our authorities would do well to copy the example set by the courts of England, and in a still more striking manner by those of France. It is quite within bounds to say that few things do so much to suggest and promote crime as the Honizing and popular canonizing of criminals, so common in this country. ---

The insurmountable obstacles which the astute Washington correspondents said would prevent the election of Gen. Rosecrans to the chairmanship of the democratic Congressional campaign committee did not seem to be recognized in all their awful seriousness by the caucus last night. The HOSIERY California Representative was chosen for the head of the committee, apparently without a struggle, and he was afterwards unanimously elected chairco-operate with a similar committee already selected by the democratic members of the Senate. Whether the action of the House caucus in choos- Hoslery. ing Gen. Rosecrans for the place is the wisest that could have been taken, remains to be seen. It may be said, however, that it seems to give satisfaction | PPP P to the republicans.

According to the Providence Star, it is possible that Senator Anthony may not succeed himself a year from now. It is stated that a faction of republican voters oppose the election of Anthony men to the legislature, and there is talk of a union with the democrats on anti-Anthony tickets. Senator Anthony, however, is a hard man to beat in Rhode Island. He was elected governor of that state in 1849, re-elected in 1850, and declined a reelection; was elected to the U.S. Senate in 1858, and was re-elected successively in 1864, 1870, and 1876. In some of these contests there were reports of combinations being formed for his defeat, but he was always able to "mend his fences" in season to keep his opponents out of his senatorial field, and, no doubt, this will be the case in the coming

4+>---The republicans have been making a clean sweep in the spring town elections in Maine. The essential point in this result is the fact that the democratic-greenbacker coalition has been practically annihilated. This must ultimately be the fate of all incongruous party associations, as the republicans of Virginia who have entered into an "entangling alliance" with the readjusters of the state will doubtless discover before long.

OUR PARIS AND LONDON IMPORTATION OF WOOLLENS FOR GENTLEMEN'S WEAR. In selecting Novelties for Spring 1882, great atter has been given to the selection of such styles as will estisfy the present tendency for the "Aesthetic." High art designs are not, indeed, suitable for every-day life; but it is, nevertheless, commendable to adorn life and add to its brightness by wearing such designs and colors as are in accord with cultivated taste, without de-
